

Imagine a land so outrageously beautiful, a land flanked by the soaring Southern Alps and the stunning Marlborough Sounds, an extensive network of coastal waterways, peninsulas and islands nestled in the shimmering ocean.

Follow your nose along the Wairau basin's long green valley, dry hills and alluvial plains, and you have arrived at the heart of the Marlborough wine region.

To this, add hot sunny days and cool nights, a climate which caused Maori to call the area 'the place with the hole in the cloud'. The result of this unique climate and topography? Vines ripening in the sun like nowhere else on earth. A synergy so good you can almost taste it; the flavours of Marlborough spilling over into our wine.
